The American Way of Life

We at East Central, student body and faculty, are proud of our American heritage which insures political and economic rights. We value the dignity and freedom which contribute to the innate worth of each individual.

As a building grows by the strength of its structure, so the individual grows by the strength of his character and stature in his school and community. We value and accentuate the things we hold dear; our love of country, the privilege to worship as we please, our individual recreation, and our contributions to worthy causes.

We have gained a solid tradition of achievement behind us. With this foundation in view, our goals are clear, and the future is growing brighter and brighter.

From Groundwork to Dedication

The formative year of East Central's new building will long impress the 1966 graduates, for each student has watched with pride the growth of this great structure from the groundwork to the final dedication of services.

Progress and Learning

Each student has felt personally involved with the progress of its construction, for the completed building may be symbolic of the ultimate aim of education—the enlightened mind.

The basic structure of steel may be compared to the learning of facts, necessary to last a lifetime in an individual's chosen vocation.

The enclosure of bricks and mortar may represent a unity of healthy attitudes and philosophies which completes a well-balanced personality for effective living.

The variety of services offered by a modern high school approximates the variety of community activities which an individual finds through urban living.

Progress and learning are the inseparable factors of an educated individual. These formative years are the key to a brighter future.

Stress on Education

Students of East Central High realize how important it is to study. They know they should begin preparing for their futures now. By using their minds effectively and applying themselves well, they can succeed in improving themselves. Hard work now will eventually attain the high goals which the students have set.

Through the knowledge from their curriculum and lessons in everyday life, their lives can be happy and purposeful. As students study together they experience the feeling of sharing knowledge and exchanging ideas. They feel the warmth of close companionship with others. As each student progresses, he will realize the value of his education in line with a brighter future.

The active lives of East Central students are not designated to school hours only. After putting in a busy day at school, the average student may be found anywhere from the annual fair, to discussing the day's activities over a coke, to participating in athletic events.

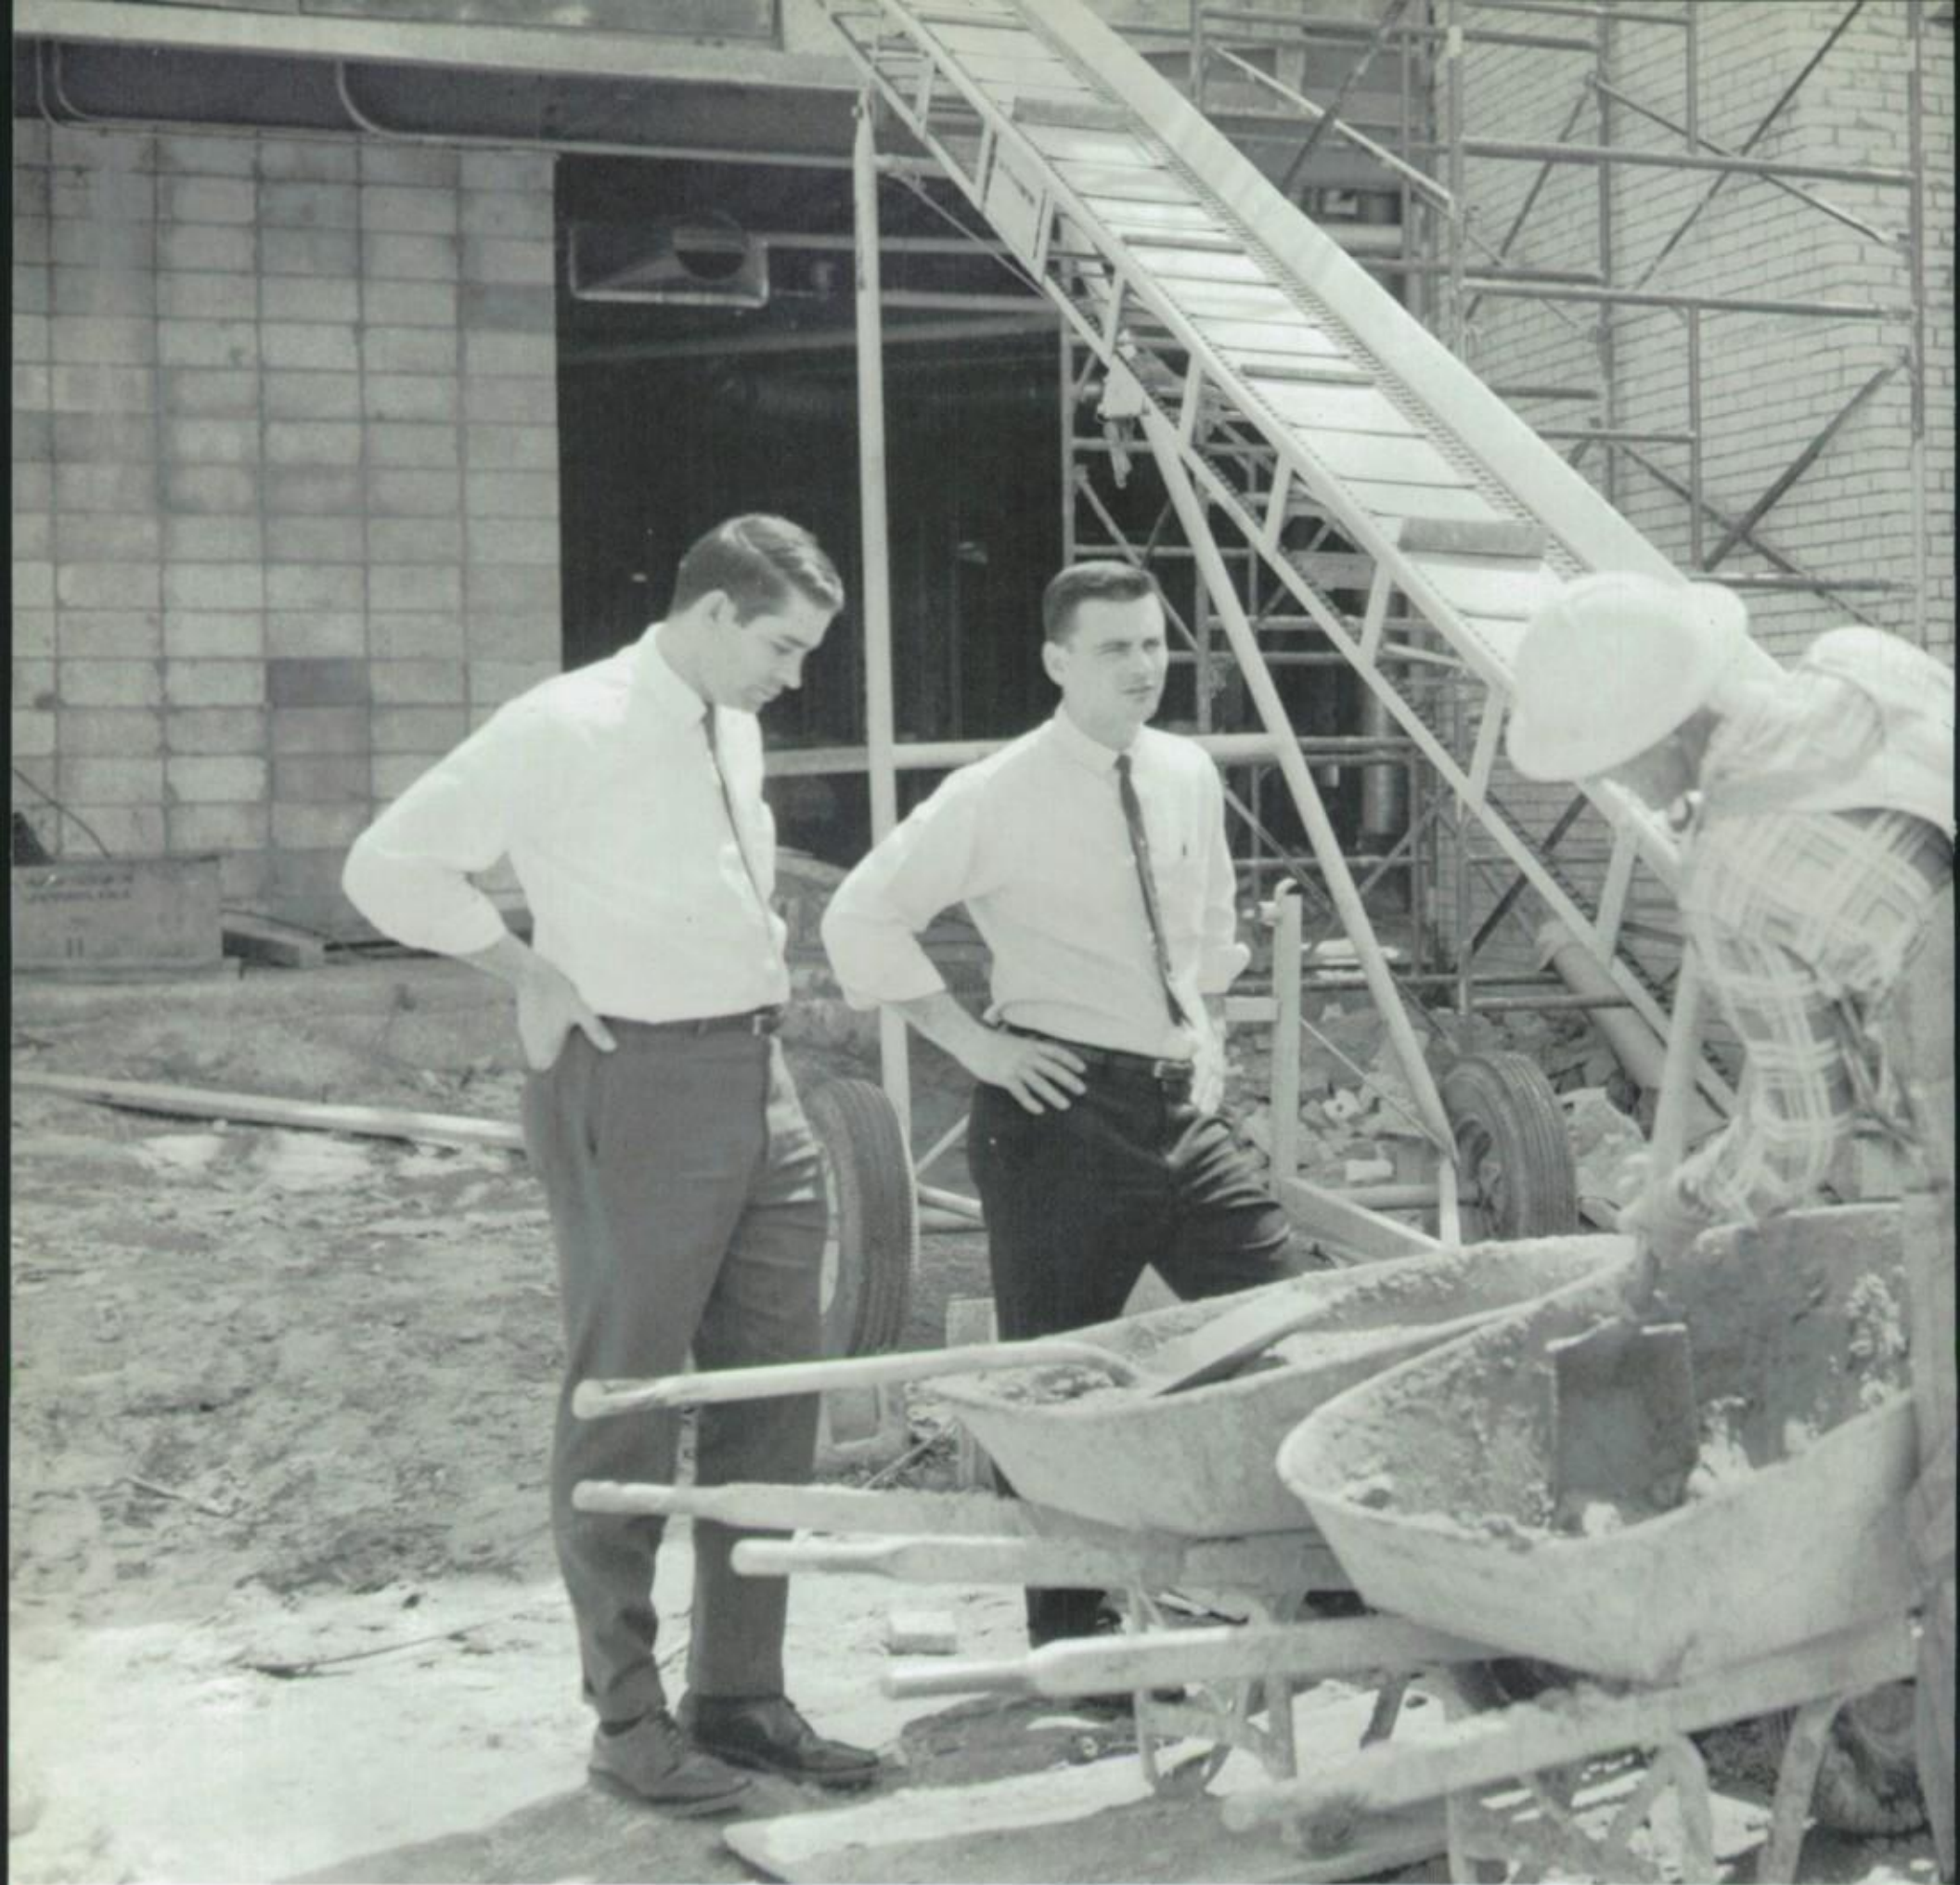

East Central students enjoy a varied program of extra-curricular activities which lay the groundwork for new standards of values, new friendships, opportunities for leadership, and community activities.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

Board of Education

Dr. Charles C. Mason

Congratulations to you, the 1966 Graduating Class of the East Central Senior High School. It is significant that you have chosen as the theme of your yearbook, "Building a Brighter Future." The fact you recognize that today is better than yesterday—and that tomorrow must be even better than today—is indicative of your concern for the future. In you, and the thousands of young men and women who are leaving the nation's high schools for further study or for taking your places in gainful occupations, lies the world's only hope for tomorrow. With the universal emphasis being placed on the importance of education for all—with the dedicated research being done by so many throughout the world—and with young people like yourselves to provide the leadership, one thing is certain: The future of the world can be as bright as you are willing to make it! My best wishes go with each of you. Your tomorrow should be a tremendously challenging and exciting one!

"For the structure that we raise
Time is with materials filled;
Our todays and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build."

—Longfellow—

These words of Longfellow might apply equally as well today as during the time when they were penned. The CARDINAL yearbook staff, along with the student body and faculty, has this past year, been more than casually interested in the growth of a building. I am pleased to discover that the theme for the 1966 CARDINAL is centered around the growth and building of the new East Central Senior High School.

I see a parallel between the academic growth and character building that have taken place in each of you and the growth of our new building—a building which we have watched for the past two years being constructed stone upon stone, block upon block, tile upon tile, floor upon floor, followed by the skillful touches of the artisan as he applied the aesthetic touches to produce a most beautiful and functional building.

As society looks at you and evaluates your character growth and your personality development, it recognizes that you are subject to change and that certain of your experiences in the past years have produced within you particular types of personality patterns. Today each of you is a thinking, feeling, acting human being who, for the most part, is conscious of himself as an individual separate from other individuals and objects. With this growth should come the realization that you do not have a personality, but rather that you are a personality, the dimension of which characterizes your uniqueness as a person. It is my hope that these factors contributing to your personality and character have been such that you have built within yourself a structure of strength, beauty, and useful traits that may serve you and your nation long after the masonry of our new building has deteriorated with the passing of time.

East Central's expanding student body has been matched with the growth of an expanding curriculum. Industrial and technical vocational classes, as well as theory and humanity courses, were added this year to accommodate the wide range of student interests and abilities. The opening of the new building this year made opportunities possible for East Central students which had never existed before. New classrooms, new equipment, more labs, and modern plant facilities: all contributed to the experiences of students as they reasoned and analyzed new solutions to new problems in order to compete in our contemporary society. Faculty members, experts in their fields, helped build character and knowledge in daily contact with students by preparing individuals to meet the demanding courses of college and the tasks in the business world.

With the combination of math and science, a variety of vocations is widened for the student. The English, speech, and language departments develop writing skills and oral communication and expression. History courses reveal the past events and trends which affect our daily lives in a changing world. The athletics staff stresses physical fitness, team work, and sportsmanship. Industrial arts classes provide the boys with the opportunity to work with tools and processes of industry, while the homemaking classes prepare the girls for domestic duties as future housewives and hostesses. Typing, shorthand, and office machine instruction prepares students for maximum efficiency in the business world. East Central's teaching staff and curriculum provide a competent background for students to succeed with a brighter future.

School Service Personnel Perform Indispensable Tasks

Service personnel worked under a handicap this year, as East Central students attended first semester on a split schedule. Counselors and office personnel managed individual problems, and student and faculty welfare with the utmost efficiency. Crowded conditions prevailed as offices and facilities were shared with the junior high. The new building, however, provided peak operating conditions for this effective staff.

The governing body at East Central High School, the Student Council, carries on the activities of the school. The members are the officers and the representatives from each homeroom.

Upon moving into the new high school, the Student Council began changing its constitution. It also adopted the first Student's Creed to be used at East Central.

On February 9, 1966, the Inter-City Student Council meeting was held at East Central. Members gave guided tours of the new school to the visitors from the other Tulsa high schools.

The Student Council contributed to student activities by sponsoring a homecoming mixer and a mixer after a basketball game. The members of the Student Council also sold candy to raise money that would enable them to continue their worthwhile endeavors.

The election of Boy and Girl of the Month was carried out by the Student Council. This procedure honored outstanding seniors who have contributed to the betterment of student life at East Central.

In April, new officers were elected by the student body. These new leaders attended a training school in which they planned the activities of the Student Council for the year 1966-1967.

To be eligible for membership in the National Honor Society, a student must possess qualities of scholarship, character, leadership, and service. These high standards must be constantly upheld by those who represent this national organization.

Officers and members of the National Honor Society attended the Will Rogers Birthday Celebration at the Will Rogers memorial in Claremore, Oklahoma. Guest speakers at the celebration were Clem McSpadden and Johnny Crawford.

On November 11, 1965, all members of the National Honor Society attended the annual National Honor Society Ceremonial which was held in the south auditorium of Central High School. This ceremony initiated the new and old members from the nine Tulsa high schools.

Under the direction of Mr. O. D. Bell, the members of the National Honor Society organized plans for this year's projects. They sponsored a clean-up campaign which was designed to keep the new building and campus clean and beautiful. They raised money for the Honor Society's contribution to the school's landscaping project and for the needed items for the further improvement of the chapter of the National Honor Society at East Central High School.

Lend Flavor to the School Curriculum

Student librarians helped students get better acquainted with the new library at East Central High School. They worked at the circulation desk where they checked books in and out; they helped process the books, and they wrote slips on overdue books. Library displays were also created by the student librarians, and members of the student body found that the student librarians were anxious to help them with reference work.

Students enrolled in school service helped East Central High School run more efficiently. School service students were assigned to work in the main office where they learned to operate both the intercom and the switchboard. Students were also assigned to work in the new student bank or with faculty members as student aides. Visitors to East Central found that school service students were a great help in giving needed information.

Cardinal Staff Features New Building

EDITOR: Suzanne Frazer

To produce a splendid 1966 Cardinal was the aim of the Cardinal staff. Through the direction of Mrs. Janet Armstrong, students sought to improve East Central's yearbook with sharp photos, clever captions, informative copy, and interesting layouts. Staff members searched for new ideas in every phase of ECHS life in order to carry out the theme, "Building a Brighter Future." This theme was chosen because of the construction of the new East Central High School which will furnish its students with a greater opportunity to improve their minds for the future.

In December, a massive sales drive set a new record—655 yearbooks sold!

Following up sales, planning picture schedules, and setting up pages—all these necessary details completed, the members breathed a momentary sigh of relief; then with shoulders squared, they began making plans for the 1967 Cardinal.

Football takes on a broader aspect than merely winning games. It has a deeper and more significant importance to the spirit and life of a school. Qualities of sportsmanship, determination, loyalty, and initiative evolve from athletics that are building factors of strong character and sound conviction.

To an outsider football means games, excitement, and cheering. But to Coach Cunningham and the CARDINAL players it means even more than that. It means long hours of tiring practice, high hopes and sometimes the lonely feeling of defeat. To other students and to teachers, football means watching and rooting to show the best our school has to offer.

East Central's basketball team ended a very successful season with 8 victories, 12 defeats and a 4th place standing in the Magic Empire Conference. The team was paced by leading scorer Mick Scullawl, who ended the season with a 20.4 point average.

Ed Black, 6'5", and Gene Povlick, 6'1", provided the necessary height in the rebound department. This, along with the play-making action of Bob Oglesby and the outside shooting of Gary Ratliff, helped to give the Cardinals a well-rounded club and the ability to add many necessary points.

The year showed steady improvement and a great deal of promise from juniors and sophomores such as Greg Sellers, Tom Hall, Walt Graves, Chris Millwee, Mike Pemberton, and Robert Hughes.

This year's B-Squad, coached by Bill Stephens, ended the season with a very impressive record of 7-8. Their greatest victory was over Cascia Hall, 82-34, in the dedication game of the new gym. The B-Squad gives a chance for the underclassmen to gain valuable experience in actual game competition, and serves as a nucleus for the following year's squad.

With the move to the new location came many new and special facilities for this year's wrestling team, and coaches John Ausmus and Bob Cunningham.

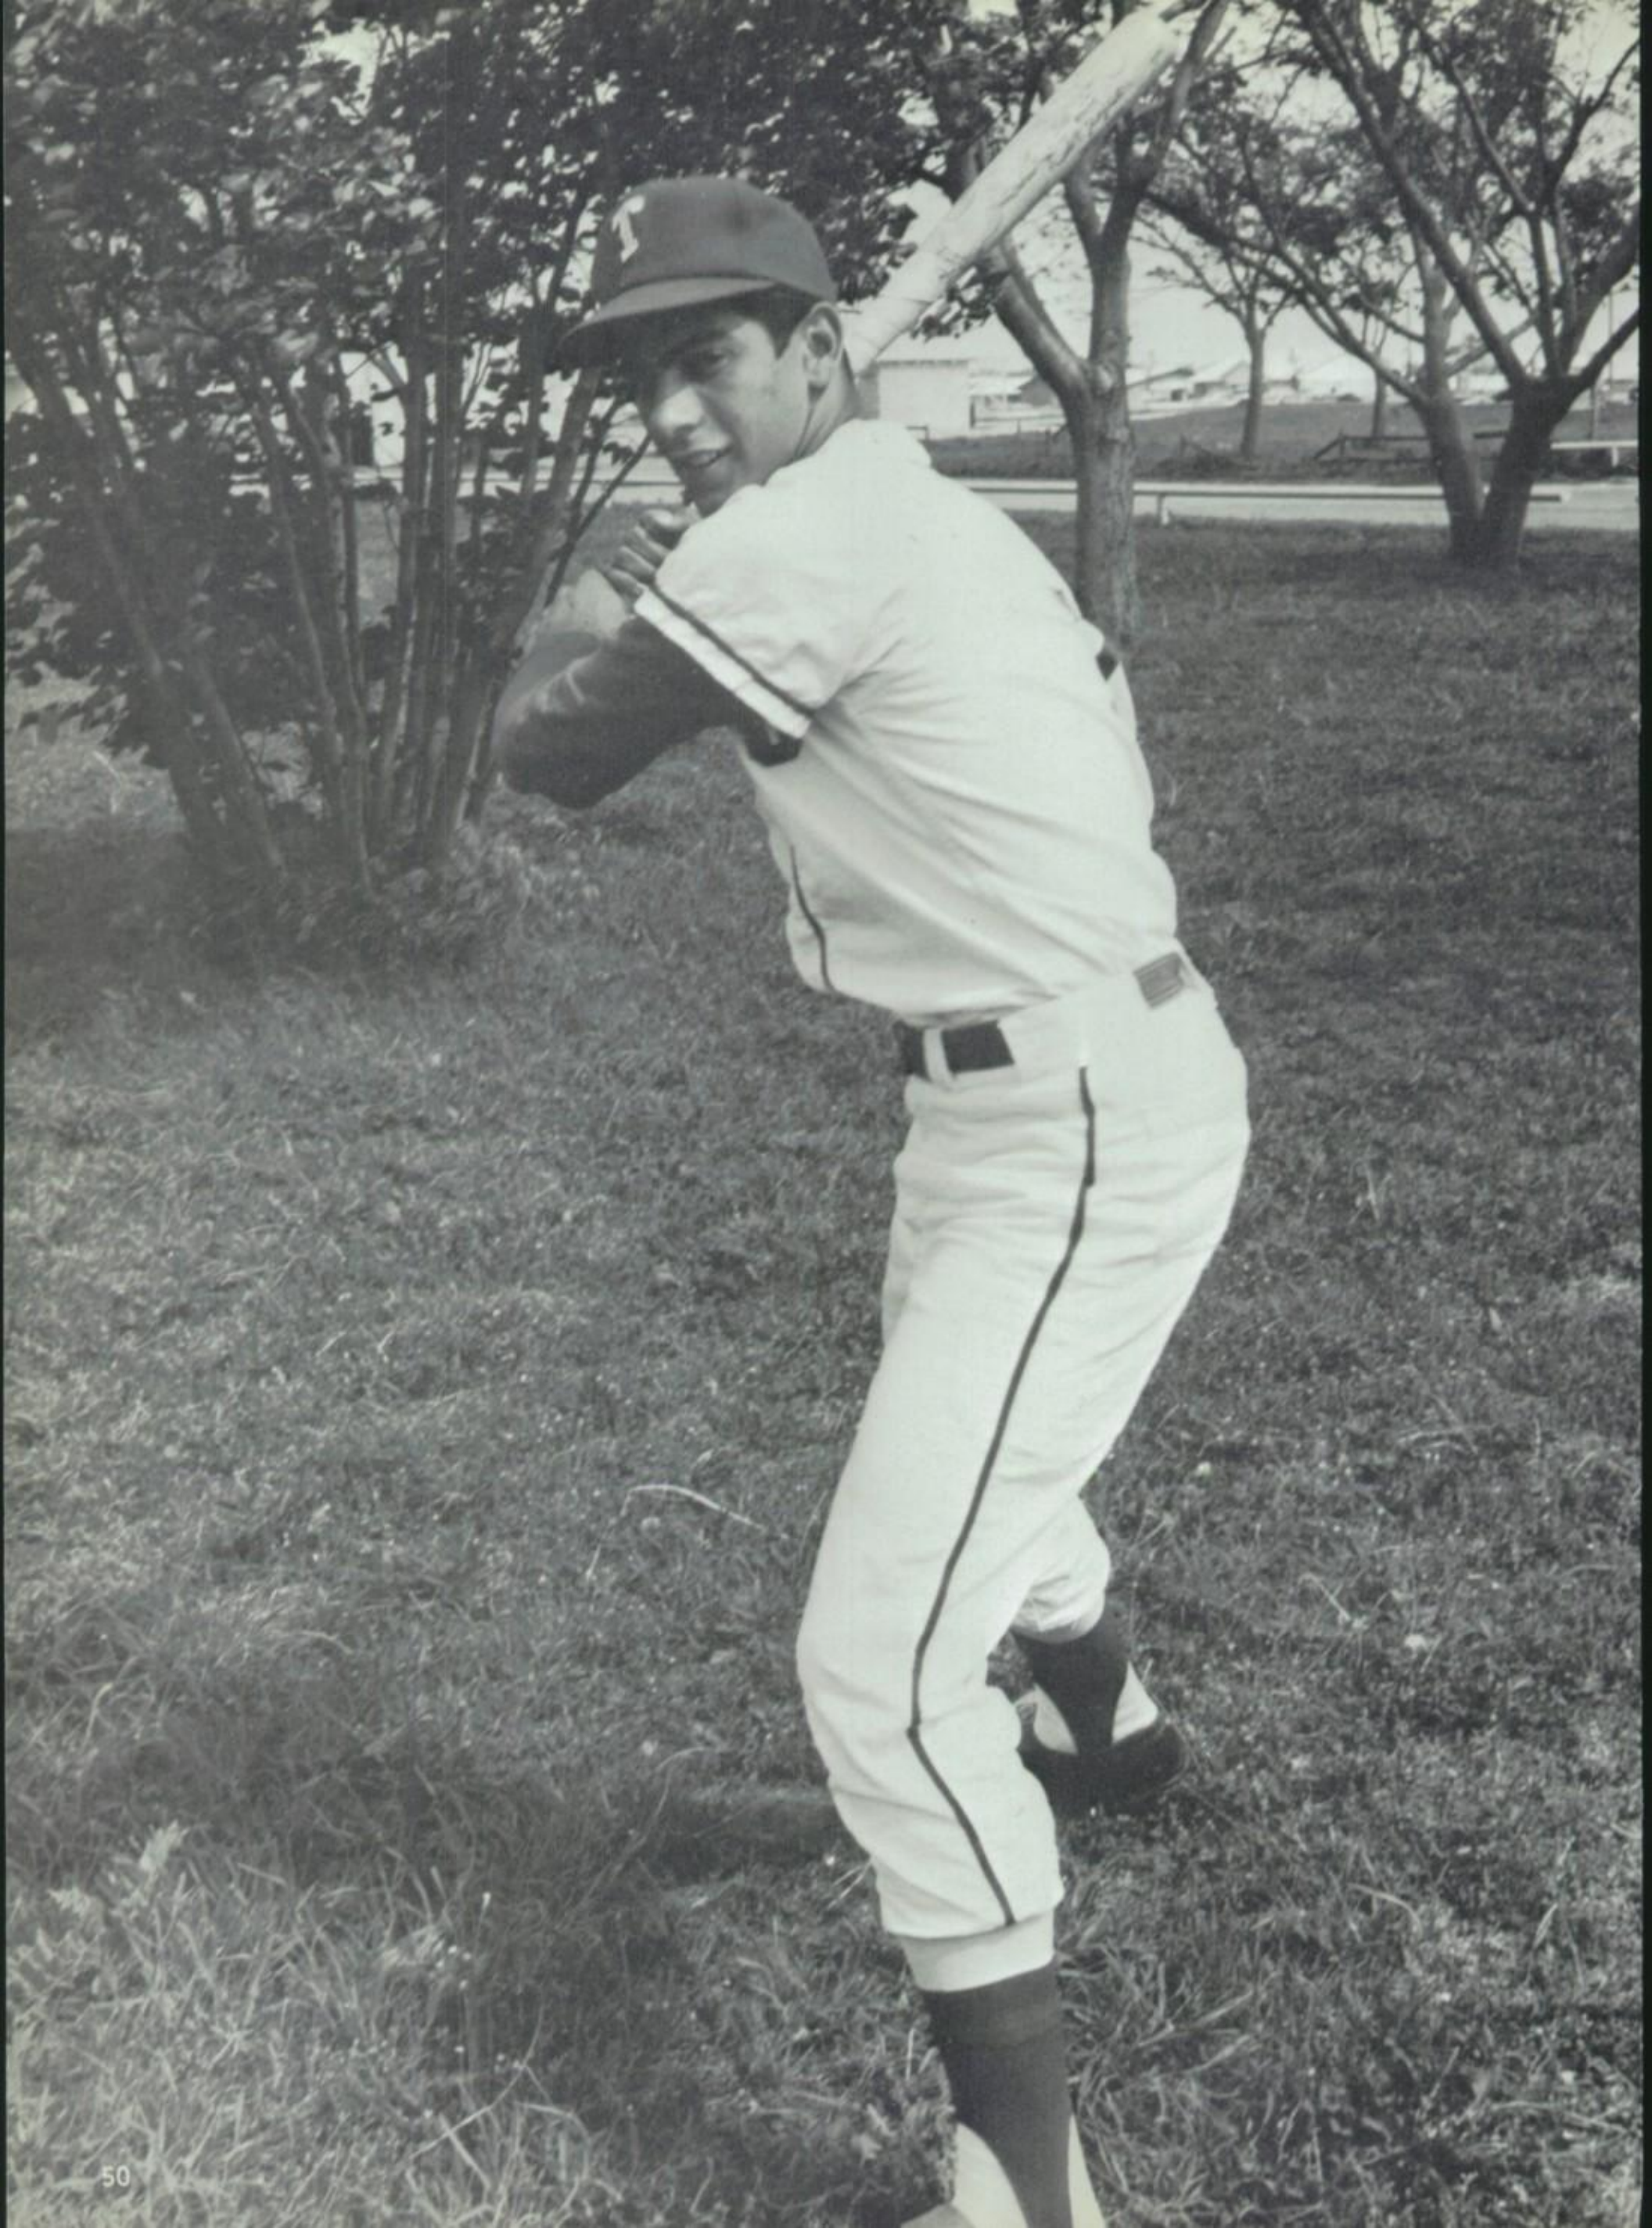

The Cardinals were provided with an auxiliary wrestling gym, where most of their practice sessions were held, and a sweat room for taking off extra weight before a match. All the inter-school matches were held in the competitive gym.

This year's squad showed a great deal of ability displayed in senior, Tony Farquhar, who placed first in the Sallisaw Tournament, second in the Edison Tournament, and compiled an over all record of 10-2; and junior, Jim Toney, who placed third in the Sallisaw Tournament and ended the season 8-5.

The squad lost only four seniors, leaving several juniors and sophomores to provide a nucleus for next year's squad.

Cardinals Prepare for Tighter Competition

Competitive sports are ever expanding and ever popular as East Central swings into serious rivalry in the Magic Empire Conference. An up-and-coming candidate for honors as Tulsa's newest and fastest growing high school, the baseball, track, and cross country athletes work hard to stay in condition for the challenge.

With new facilities and a determined team Coach Bill Clark was able to have a successful 1966 season, with the team placing third in the Magic Empire All-City Meet and setting the following new school records:

Ben Harper	200 yd. freestyle	2:28.3
Jim Damet	60 yd. freestyle	30.8
	100 yd. freestyle	55.6
Tom Crook	160 yd. Ind. medley	2:03.8
	100 yd. butterfly	1:10.8
James Stewart	100 yd. backstroke	1:14.1
Stan Beair	400 yd. freestyle	5:44.1
Neal Browne	100 yd. breast stroke	1:15.4

East Central's new pool, one of Tulsa's finest, is 60 feet long, and 30 feet wide. The shallow end is 4 feet deep and tapers to a maximum depth of 10 feet. The pool is equipped with 6 lanes for competitive swimming and a competitively styled diving board. The Cards were proud to host inter-school swim meets in the first floor Natatorium.

Football Royalty

Highlighting the football season was the coronation of Miss Dodie Cottingim. Dodie was crowned by cardinal co-captain Dale Pittman at the annual homecoming game held in October. A capacity crowd was on hand to see Dodie reign as the last homecoming queen at the old East Central building. Dodie shows her loyalty to the team by being a cheerleader and an active member of the pep club. She is also a member of the Senior Board and was chosen "friendliest" of the senior class. Attending the queen were senior, Marilyn Corser, junior, Carla Looney, and sophomore, Cathy Alexander.

Queen Dodie reigns at the traditional coronation.

Band Royalty

East Central Royalty Elaine Byars and her attendants, Senior Susan Biting, Junior, Debbie Burson, and Sophomore, Phyllis Ernst, added the dramatic touch to a successful year for the Cardinal band at the annual spring concert. Elaine was escorted by band co-captain, Bud Kenny. Queen Elaine was chosen, not only because of her beauty and charm, but because of her abundant musical talent. She is an active member of the Tulsa Youth Symphony, and played in the orchestra for the all-city Messiah production. Elaine is also the accompanist for East Central's choir.

ALICE WALLACE

The foundation of East Central, as for every school, is structured by people who are outstanding in scholarship, leadership, and character. These are the students who devote their time and abilities to the welfare of others and to the school as a whole. Their academic standards are high, and their individual initiative benefits the entire student body. Their character portrays an image of American youth which may be set as a pattern for all people in our contemporary society.

Pictured above are the 1966 Hall of Fame members, who were selected by a senior faculty committee as representative of the outstanding students who graduate from East Central every year. Depicting each phase of school honors, organizations, and activities, these individuals have influenced the tremendous success of East Central's second semester in the new building. Their accomplishments serve as a cornerstone for a solid foundation to the future.

Seniors Learn by Doing

Under the guidance of Senior class sponsor Mr. O. D. Bell, the senior class officers and the Senior Board combined efforts to make this final year in high school one of pride for all seniors. Each individual looked forward with anticipation to the many activities of the year. The first all-school production, The Glass Menagerie, was performed in the new high school auditorium and included Bud Keeney as "Jim." Senior students also took part in the annual school talent show sponsored by the Red Cross. Gary Baker received an overall achievement award as "Outstanding 4H Club Boy of Tulsa County," and he attended the annual 4H Congress in Chicago. The athletic events, in which several senior boys participated, added excitement and fun to a senior year that ended all too soon. The Junior-Senior prom, highlight of the year, was held at the Elks' Club in May. The happy confusion of ordering caps, gowns, and announcements brought on the sad realization that graduation was near. This 1966 senior class was the first to graduate from the new East Central high school building which was opened in January. At the end of the year, mixed feelings of pride, humility, mirth, and melancholy left all seniors with one common sentiment—the invaluable experience received at East Central can never be replaced. After graduation, the seniors will find their lives as new to them as the midterm move from the old building to the new. As the building grows old, the senior graduates will mature in character, intelligence, and leadership in building tomorrow's future.

Juniors Have a Busy Year.

The 1965-66 junior class had its biggest year in East Central's history. A total of 137 boys and 122 girls were enrolled. The active class started the year off right by ordering senior class rings, which were received the first two weeks of February. Sponsored by Miss Nancy Hogan, the juniors achieved a great deal considering the fact that the student body changed buildings at mid-term. An ambitious junior board met every two weeks to decide a tentative course of action, and then revised its ideas to fit student requirements. Juniors operated the concession stands during football, wrestling, and basketball games, giving Cardinal fans ample energy to cheer the teams on! Juniors joined the other classes in competitive ticket sales for the school plays and other all-school productions. Their efforts were rewarded by a large percentage of the proceeds. To honor the departing seniors, the junior class also sponsored the annual Junior-Senior Prom which was held in May, 1966. The class laid a strong foundation for a successful year to come.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Jim Knight, President; Debbie Burson, Secretary; Gene Covington, Vice-President.

Sophomores Enter High School

For the first time in the history of the East Central sophomore class, students were allowed to conduct a week-long campaign, climaxed with voting by secret ballot. The sophomores displayed their enthusiasm in election of class officers by the use of campaign material posted in the school corridors, and the candidates' vigorous and inspiring speeches which were presented in a special assembly. The officers and appointed board members were kept busy throughout the year with activities carried out by the sophomore class. Students adjusted very well to the change from junior to senior high, and the class will be the first to graduate with a three-year record from the newly completed high school. Containing 140 girls and 126 boys, the class had the largest total enrollment of East Central. The class was sponsored by Mr. Jim Quetone, who is also business education teacher and basketball coach.

Visions of a Bright Future

"Build today, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base;
And ascending and secure
Shall tomorrow find its place."

Mrs. Armstrong,
It is a rare privilege to work with a teacher as kind and as hardworking as you. I know you have a powerful influence on my outlook towards a career in Journalism. Thanks for all my wonderful experiences in 508. See ya' next year.

J.B.

Mrs. Armstrong,
I've really enjoyed being in your year-a book class these past few years. I hope your future will be as happy as you've made my last two years in yearbook. God Bless you.

"Dr. 65-66"

Mrs. Armstrong,
You've been a wonderful teacher this year. I've enjoyed your class as much - and I never knew that so much work could go into producing a yearbook. Yearbook class is something I really look forward to taking next year.

Mrs. Armstrong,
I've enjoyed being in yearbook this year. So much. I can't wait to see what next year will bring. I hope God will bless your life richly because it is so deserving.

Mrs. Armstrong-

It has been a pleasure being in your "Yearbook" class. You were a wonderful and very patient teacher.

Good Luck,
Marilyn Corser

Mrs. Armstrong,

Thank you for a great year. I have learned more about writing and a yearbook than I thought possible. I must confess you're my favorite yearbook teacher. Cheri Cahal

Mrs. Armstrong-
I want to thank you for helping to make my Jr. year so happy and especially for considering me as editor. Yearbook is fun, but I have found out it is also much work.

God bless you,
Sandy Chumley

Mrs. Armstrong,

What does a person say to such a wonderful teacher who has helped ~~me~~ so much? A mere thank you is not enough. Working under your supervision has been a wonderful experience, I have enjoyed writing this year like I never thought I would. I'm so thankful I enrolled in journalism so that I could learn and so that I could broaden a new field of interest for me.

You have been so kind in helping me and your praise made me try so much harder.

I hope that someday you will be reading the newspaper and will come across a story written by me. If this ever ~~does~~ happen, ~~it~~ I want you to realize that you are wholly responsible for it. Thank you for everything!

Jan Hale

Mrs. Armstrong-
It has really been a pleasure working with you these past 2 years on the Yearbook. You are a wonderful sponsor and it wouldn't be the same if we had to have any one else. Good luck next year.
